

Katharine Ehly Senior Policy Advisor

Katharine Ehly is the Senior Policy Advisor for the Natural Gas Supply Association (NGSA) and Center for Liquefied Natural Gas (CLNG).

A recognized authority and sought-out expert, Katharine advises CLNG and NGSA member companies, regulators, legislators and key stakeholders on strategy, policy positions and regulatory issues impacting liquefied natural gas (LNG) and natural gas producers, marketers and shippers.

Katharine plays a leading role in NGSA and CLNG's climate and environmental work. She led the CLNG membership in crafting CLNG's Methane Principles and works with members on efforts to reduce CO2 emissions. Among the comments she has filed at the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission are extensive comments advocating for balanced policies that seriously consider environmental impacts while still enabling the development of needed natural gas infrastructure. She also successfully advocated for modernized risk-based LNG safety regulation in the U.S. Pipelines and Hazardous Materials Safety Administration (PHMSA) reauthorization legislation, as well as improved pipeline and infrastructure permitting.

Before joining NGSA, Katharine spent nearly a decade in the natural gas and oil industry as a Policy Advisor in the American Petroleum Institute's Market Development Group and Director of Policy and Research Analysis at American's Natural Gas Alliance.

Katharine holds a Master of Arts from American University in International Relations and a Bachelor of Arts from Vassar College in Political Science with minors in English and History.
